The doctors amputated the first finger of the right hand of Charley Burrows on last Friday. It will be remembered that Mr. Burrows had both his hands badly burned a week or so ago by causing a short circuit between the telephone and the electric light. Blood poisoning set in and it became necessary to remove the finger.

While Dr. Ingham was using his gasoline forge one day last week, it exploded and in extinguishing the flames and throwing the tank from the window, he burned his right hand severely. The flames ran to the ceiling blackening the plastered wall and but for the Doctor's quickness and presence of mind, there would probably have been a disastrous fire.

The Pumpkin.

Ah! On Thanksgiving day, when from East and from West, From North and from South comes the pilgrim and guest; When the gray haired New Englander sees around his board The old broken links of affection restored,

When the care wearied man seeks his mother once more, And the worn matron smiles where the girl smiled before, What moistens the lip and what brightens the eye?

What calls back the past like the rich pumpkin pie? Oh, fruit loved of boyhood, the old days recalling, When wood grapes were purpling and brown nuts were falling!

When wild ugly faces we carved in its skin, Glaring out through the dark with a candle within! When we laughed 'round the corn heap with hearts all in tune,

Our chair a broad pumpkin, our lantern the moon; Telling tales of the fairy who traveled like steam, In a pumpkin shell coach with two rats for her team. —Whittier.

Ted's Story of Thanksgiving.

We had all sat down to dinner on that glad Thanksgiving Day—There were uncles, aunts and cousins who had come from far away—

But before he carved the turkey grandpa turned to little Ted: "Can you tell us why we celebrate Thanksgiving Day?" he said.

Now Ted was only six, but he knew the story well, And he drew himself up proudly for 'twas one he loved to tell. "The Pilgrims wished to worship God the way that they thought best,

But the king said they must go to church along with all the rest.

"So they fled across the ocean and they came right over here; 'Twas just as cold as could be—'twas the winter of the year: And our country then was different, and of course there was no dock.

So the whole one hundred of 'em had to land on Plymouth Rock. "It was such a hard, cold winter that they died off thick and fast,

But finally it was over and the spring had come at last;

And when the Pilgrims gathered in their harvest in the fall, They felt so very happy, they were thankful, one and all.

"And they thought they'd set apart a day in which to praise and pray,

And they also had a feasting which they called Thanksgiving Day.

And that is why we keep it when our crops are gathered in.

Because we, too, are thankful to have filled each loft and bin.

"And I'm thankful to the Pilgrims because they made the day,

For I like a good big dinner and a time to romp and play."

And when our Ted had finished, "That was well told," grandpa said,

And the aunts and uncles shouted, "Here's three cheers for little Ted!"—St. Nicholas.

True to his custom of thirty years standing, Horace Vose of Westerly, R. I. who is known as the "Rhode Island turkey king," selected the largest, fattest and proudest gobbler on his farm and sent it to President Taft for Thanksgiving dinner at the White House. Mr. Vose has been sending a fine turkey to the White House at every Thanksgiving time since President Grant's day. This year the bird he selected for the offering, he declared, was the largest one he had ever raised. Mr. Vose remarked after weighing the big gobbler, and when the scales registered nearly fifty pounds, "The biggest turkey I ever raised is going to the heaviest of all Presidents."
